KOLOSSEUM

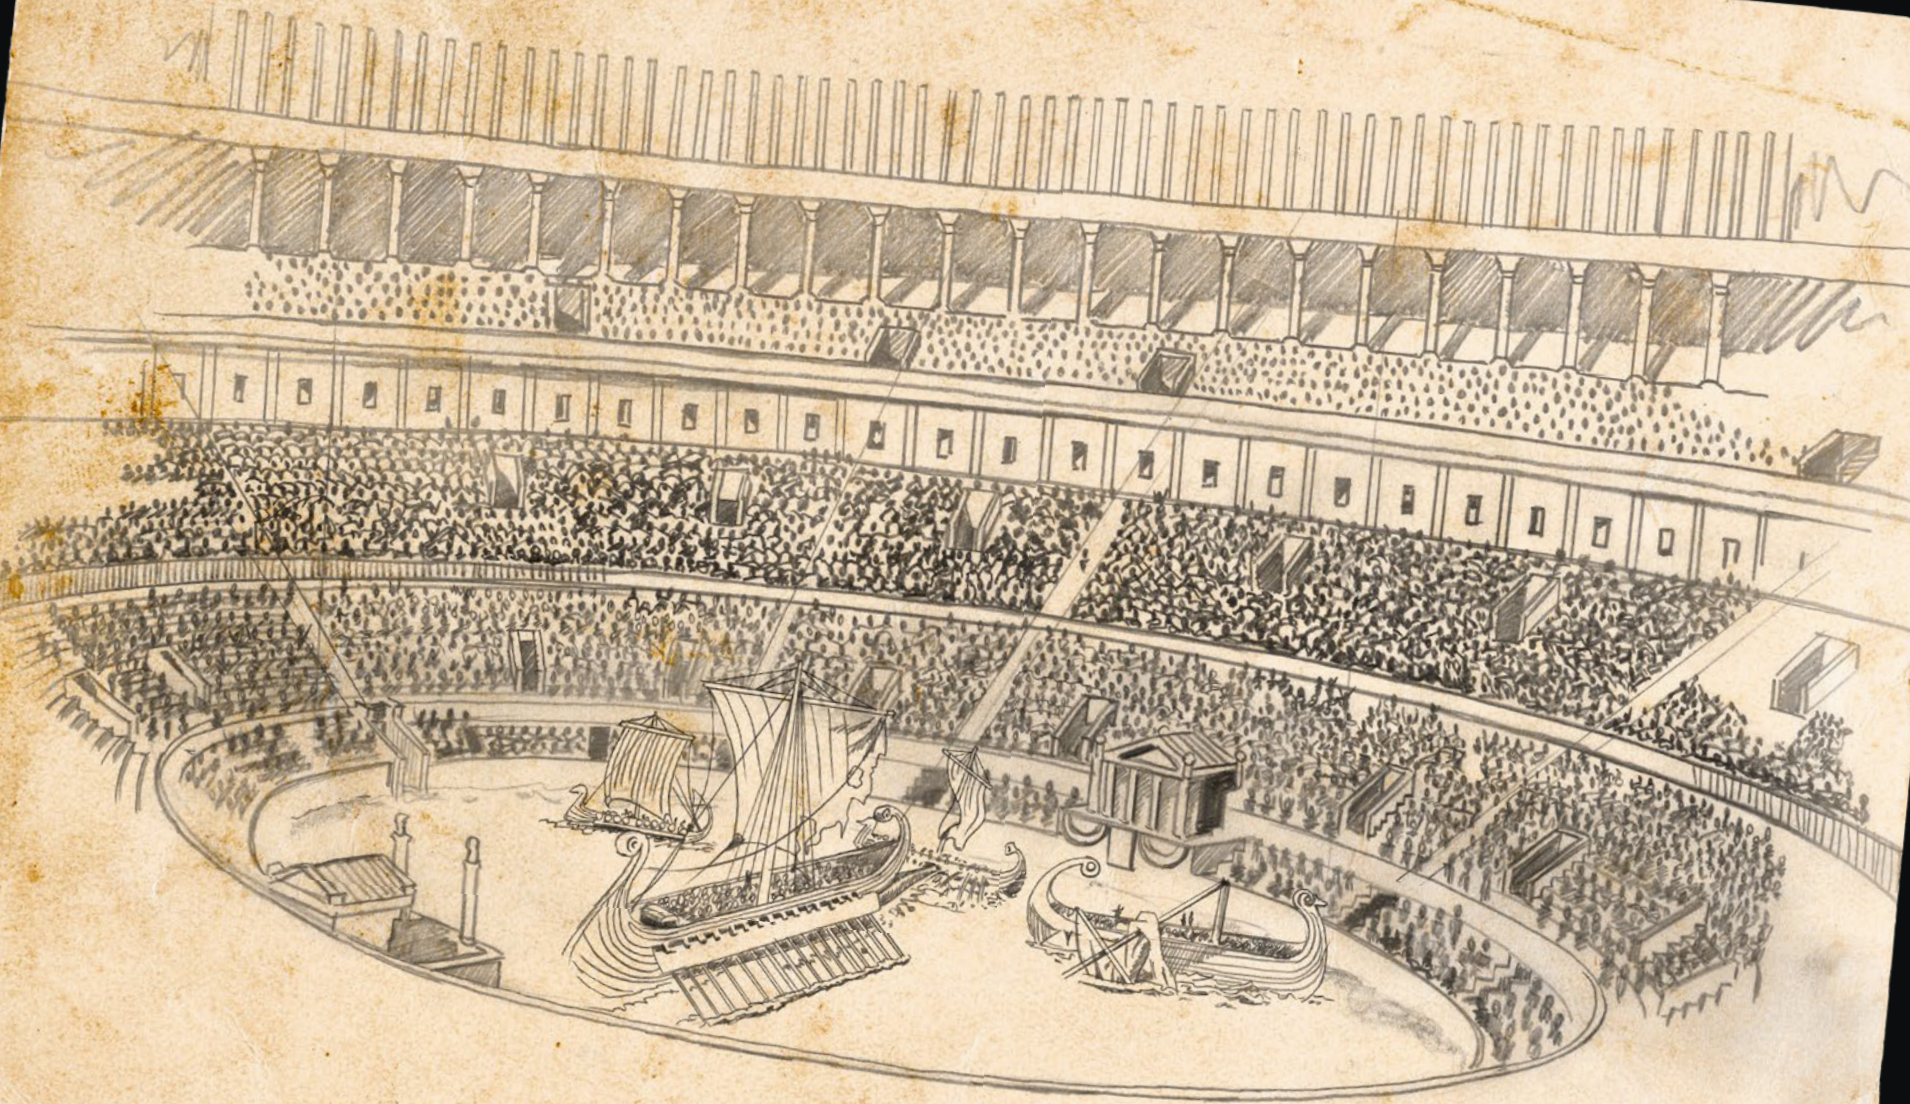

II

GESCHICHTE

Der Große Brand von Rom im Jahr 64 nach Christus vernichtete die Stadt. Kaiser Nero nahm sich daraufhin einen großen Teil des Gebiets, in dem heute das Kolosseum steht. Der Bau begann unter Kaiser Vespasian im Jahr 72 nach Christus und wurde von seinem Nachfolger und Erben Titus im Jahr 80 nach Christus vollendet. Weitere Veränderungen wurden während der Herrschaft von Domitian, dem 3. Kaiser aus der Herrscherdynastie der Flavier vorgenommen, unter anderem der Bau des Hypogeums unter der Arena.

Die Mengen strömten ins Kolosseum, um sich die Aufführung historischer Seeschlachten anzusehen.

DAS SPEKTAKEL

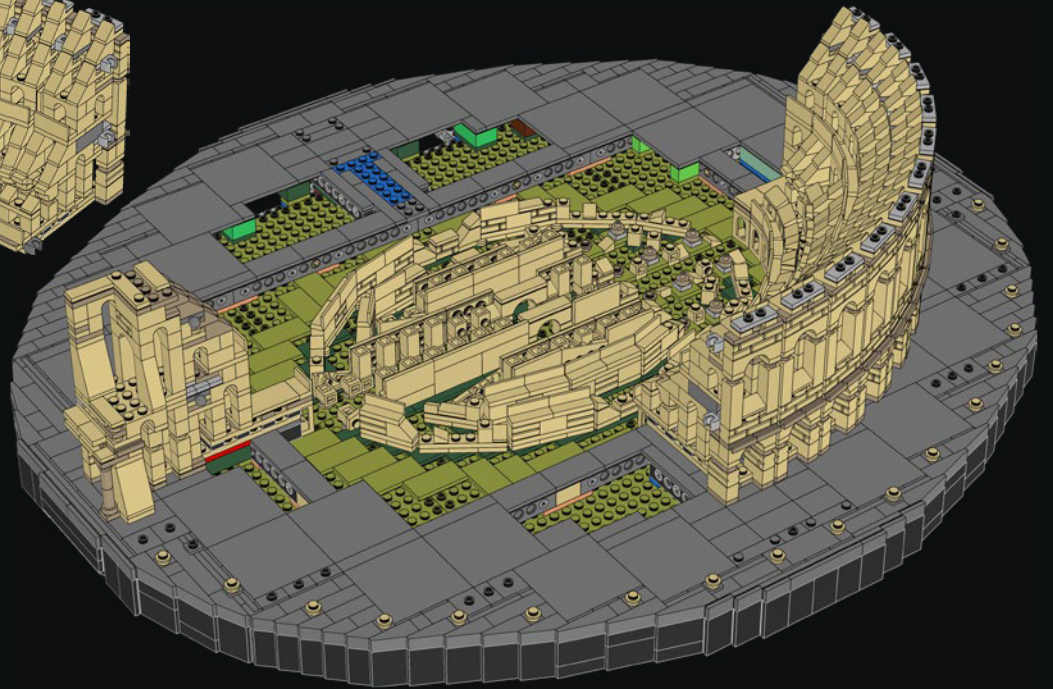

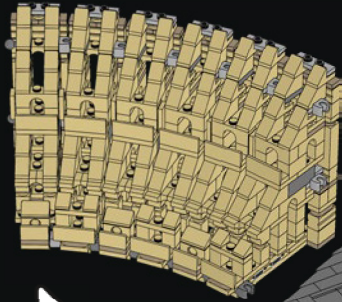

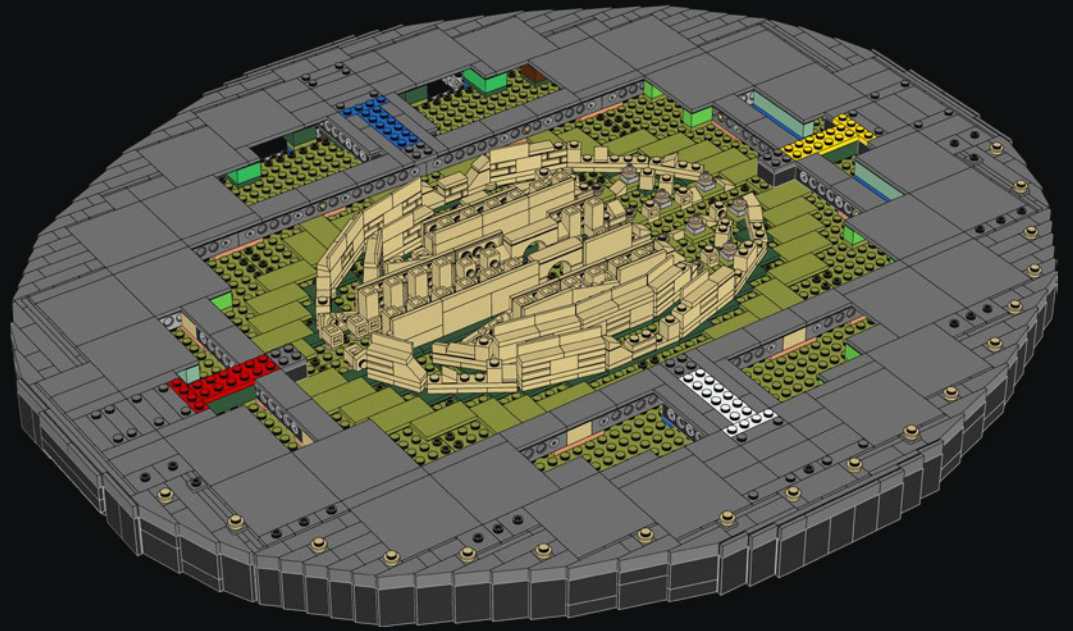

Die Aufführungen epischer Seeschlachten zählten zu den beliebtesten Veranstaltungen im Kolosseum. Die erste Seeschlacht wurde im Jahr 80 nach Christus aufgeführt. Die Arena wurde geflutet und eigens gebaute Schiffe mit flachem Kiel stellten die Schlacht zwischen Athen und Syrakus nach. Bis heute ist unbekannt, wie es gelang, die Arena zu fluten und das Wasser dann wieder so schnell ablaufen zu lassen. Aber viele antike Schriftsteller beschreiben diese spektakulären Schauspiele, die als naumachiae bezeichnet wurden.

Jeder Rang war durch die Stufen und Korridore aus den Vomitorien in Sektionen und die Sektionen noch weiter in Zuschauerblöcke (cunei) unterteilt. Jede Sitzreihe (gradus) war nummeriert. So war jeder Sitzplatz mit der Sitzreihe, dem Block und der Nummer exakt festgelegt.

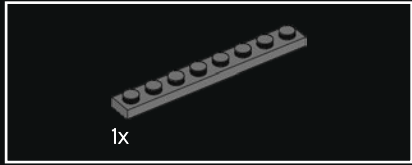

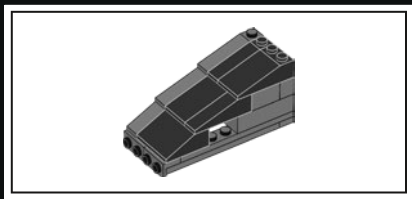

DIE ZUSCHAUER

Schätzungsweise verfolgten bis zu 80.000 Zuschauer das Spektakel. Die Verteilung der Zuschauer im Kolosseum spiegelt dabei das starre Klassensystem der römischen Gesellschaft wider. Besondere Logen an der Nord- und Südseite der Arena boten die beste Aussicht und waren dem Kaiser vorbehalten. Diese Logen waren von den Plätzen der Senatoren umgeben. Der Rang darüber war für die Adligen reserviert. Über den Adligen saßen die reichen und geachteten Bürger der Stadt, und ganz oben standen die Armen und die Sklaven.
