EL COLISEO

El Coliseo se encuentra en el corazón de la capital de Italia y es un inconfundible símbolo de su pasado como parte del Imperio romano. Este impresionante anfiteatro, el más grande que se construyó en aquella época, podía alojar entre 50.000 y 80.000 espectadores. La gente se reunía allí para ver combates entre gladiadores, cacerías de animales e, incluso, recreaciones de famosas batallas navales. Ampliamente considerado como una de las siete maravillas del mundo moderno, es también una de las atracciones turísticas más populares y recibe más de 7 millones de visitantes cada año.

Mientras que los antiguos teatros griegos se construían en las laderas de las montañas, el imponente Coliseo se erige en solitario, sobre el fondo llano de un valle, en el centro de Roma.

ANFITEATRO

El Coliseo es una estructura elíptica independiente de 189 m de longitud y 156 m de anchura. La arena interior ovalada tiene 87 m de longitud y 55 m de anchura, y está rodeada por un imponente muro de 5 m, por encima del cual se eleva el espectacular graderío. El muro exterior del Coliseo alcanza una altura de 48 m, que aún sería mayor si se consideran los mástiles de madera para sujetar los toldos móviles que se desplegaban en ocasiones mediante complejos mecanismos.

80 entradas a nivel del suelo rodeaban la estructura. Las 4 entradas axiales principales estaban reservadas para el emperador y las élites de la ciudad, y estaban generosamente decoradas.

CONSTRUCCIÓN

La construcción del Coliseo requirió más de 100.000 m³ de travertino (45.000 de los cuales se emplearon en el levantamiento de los muros exteriores). En lugar de usar mortero, las piedras se unieron mediante más de 300 t de abrazaderas de hierro. La fachada exterior de la estructura se compone de 3 niveles, cada uno con 80 imponentes arcadas. En la arena, una plataforma de madera cubierta de tierra ocultaba un elaborado sistema subterráneo denominado hipogeo.

HIPOGEO

El hipogeo era una red subterránea de 2 niveles compuesta de túneles y jaulas que se agregó después de la construcción original del Coliseo. Era donde se alojaban los gladiadores y los animales antes de los combates. Su construcción significó el fin de las espectaculares recreaciones de batallas navales, pues ya no era posible inundar la arena.

El Coliseo se conoce también como Anfiteatro Flavio en honor a los 3 emperadores de la dinastía flavia que lo construyeron y reformaron.
